

60001348813.txt

Mergers like this harm the American Public because it eliminates competition and gives corporations more control over what the American public watch. Charter Communications has a history of offering unfavorable and anti-competitive terms to independent programmers. In addition, Charter has filed for bankruptcy multiple times in the past 10 years demonstrating an inability to manage its own business. Allowing this merger would not be in the American public's best interests.