When there are fewer of anything such as cable companies, retail stores, airlines ... the public's available source for diversity becomes limited in each case. The decision of one company now leaves us with fewer places to go (in many cases no other places to go) to get the news / programming / products / services that we would like to receive. In the case of Charter Communications purchase of other cable providers, rules need to be put in place to protect the cable service program providers like One America News from being denied access to the channel lineup because of a decision not to carry or from unfair access fees / rules. I want as much diversity as I can get on my cable channels.
