Dear FCC,
My name is Dirk Steingäßer and I live in Weiterstadt, Germany.

The principles of user choice and control are vitally important for a vibrant wireless ecosystem. But as written, the NPRM threatens to undermine these ideals by limiting what users can do with their devices. That's a concern, because

I don't want to see community innovations, such as mesh networking, get cut off.

The draft rules could enable device manufacturers to forbid third-party software, which would keep me from using my custom wireless configuration.

No, just no. Please put the global interests above your own.
The investment into this issue will take away the freedom of the user.

Sincerely,
Dirk Steingäßer
