

This will be a win for consumers. Renting cable/satellite boxes we don't need just to enrich corporations is not a good business model. With more and more people "cutting the cord," one would think that cable/satellite companies would be looking for more ways to keep customers, rather than drive them away with arbitrary fees.