My thanks to the FCC for inquiring into the censorship being implemented by many cable/satellite networks. I am fortunate to have Dish network as a satellite provider and, to date, have not experienced any problems with access to the content I prefer (RFD ranking very high in my choices). However, as the various service providers tend to have a monopoly in any given area - I believe they should provide programming based on what their subscribers want and not have their choices arbitrarily limited by what corporate management thinks they should watch.
