I'm not even sure where to start.

I've been building my own computers and using open source software on my home router for many years now. It would be a grievous blow to my personal interest in computing to limit me to closed source software. No more could I experiment with operating systems or use open source software for many functions like our television and music systems.

Please consider that there are millions of us out here that don't want to be saddled with "just Microsoft" or "just Apple". Open source software is how we grow and learn. It should not be pushed out by laws that make such limiting demands.

Thank you for your time,

Frank
