I strongly feel that The American public deserves the right to choose independent programming on television. I encouraged the FCC to protect our independent programmers as they provide valuable education to the greater public. Being American Farmer and work in the ad industry I can't explain how critical RFD-TV is to educating the public about agriculture and supporting the industry that provides so much for the world. The world needs farmers to live as they provide our food and fibers to live. Stations such as this provide information to continue improving practices for the greater good.

Please continue to support the independent programmers like RFD-TV and others by education to our public by offering the services in economical cable packages such as DirecTV and dish network. Please do not allow the urban media giants to block rural content that is so critical for everyone.
