I watch RFD-TV on Dish. I believe this agricultural programming is one of the most valuable programs on television. We rely on this station for market news and livestock auction information. We also know that we are guaranteed wholesome family entertainment. Agriculture in this country is very limitedly understood by masses of people in our communities today. Why would n' t it be wise for people of all ages and cultures to learn more about where their food is grown and produced? Please allow this programing to conti nue!
