

As a prospective cattle farmer, RFD TV is essential go gaining insights on the agricultural industry not just in the beef sector but in all areas of cattle and cattle feed productions as well as the overall industry. It would be a travesty for many hardworking American families, if this resource was remove by bureaucratic short-sightedness. Without these individuals, the vast majority of our citizens would not be able to feed themselves and their children. That I have to state the obvious should show that the discussion of removing a such a vital resource as RFD-TV from our farmers and ranchers should be viewed by all Americans as absurd in the least. I hope the FCC will be prudent in their decision making concerning the future of RFD-TV and its impact on our American way of life.
