We watch RFD-TV on DirecTV and so do many of our friends and relatives who are not computer savvy. We speak for them too when we say To Whom It May Concern at the FCC regarding Proceeding 16-41: Please do not give in to TV for the sake of ratings. TV needs to provide viewers like ourselves the ability to select TV stations that provide clean, vital entertainment and information that we know as grandparents we can trust to support the good morals and characteristics instilled in us. We want to be able to turn on our sets at any time, on any day, with enjoyable programs that are also appropriate for our grandchildren to watch. My husband and I are not farmland folk but enjoy RFD-TV because we can trust their programming choices. We are the generation who nurtured the executives who are now in charge of making scheduling decisions and we'd like to think we passed along those good qualities that guide their judgement. Continued desensitizing of today's audience to allow more hate, sex and violence is not in the best interest of our children, country or for that matter, the world. It is getting harder to find sensible TV like RFD-TV as more and more stations are dropped from listings. Please don't let this trend continue. Thank you!
