"I watch RFD-TV on Dish Network".

It is imperative that networks like RFD-TV be available to as many Americans as possible, whether in an urban or rural environment.

It is hard to believe these networks are being unfairly targeted because of 'Political Correctness'. Do you think the providers would dare drop PBS programming? No, they would not. RFD-TV pays it's own way with advertising while PBS is on the taxpayer payroll. RFD-TV has a much larger audience than PBS and many other 'politically and socially' correct networks, but the providers would never drop them.

It is vital to our Country that everyone (especially those in urban environments) be exposed to this type of lifestyle to educate them that there is a more peaceful and enriching way of life than what they may know now.

Thank you for the opportunity to express my opinions.
