The situation with Verizon being able to drop cable networks at their pleasure is wrong. They need to meet the needs of their audience and not their own self interest. As soon as I can find another cable provider that will service my interest I will drop Verizon. RFD TV and the Weather Channel were both important channels for myself and my family and they have both been taken away. Verizon's answer was to send us a $5 credit each month on our bill. Big deal. They need to supply what is wanted by their customers. Since they have gotten to big for their own good it is time for the public to knock them back down to size by dropping them.
