Chairman Wheeler,

I'm writing to urge you to restore broadband competition by fixing the broken market for high-capacity broadband lines. The FCC must address anti-competitive behavior in this market to reach its goal of delivering better, faster, cheaper broadband to all Americans. The future of our information economy depends on it.

The abuse and neglect that the monopoly carriers display towards their customers is ridiculous. As a military member living on Joint Base Anacostia Bolling I ONLY have access to Comcast, and the closest "office" that customers can visit for face-to-face service is located under an overpass in a high-crime neighborhood. How can the single biggest carrier ($17.9 Billion in 2015 first quarter alone) not provide better? Because they don't have to when their customer literally have no other option. Ian S. McCurdy
