

May 9, 2016

Marlene H. Dortch
Secretary
Federal Communications Commission
445 12th Street, S.W.
Room TW-A325
Washington, D.C. 20554

Electronically Filed

Re: Telcordia Technologies, Inc. Petition to Reform Amendment 57 and to Order a Competitive Bidding Process for Number Portability Administration, WC Docket No. 07-149, WC Docket No. 09-109, CC Docket No. 95-116

Dear Ms. Dortch:

We write in response to the May 4, 2016, letter on behalf of Ericsson's wholly-owned subsidiary Telcordia Technologies, Inc. d/b/a iconectiv ("Ericsson"). Ericsson argues (at 2) that its communications regarding violations of the Selection Order are "completely irrelevant to the remaining issue in this proceeding," which it says is limited to "whether the Master Services Agreement is consistent with the" Selection Order.¹ Ericsson further argues that "whether Telcordia would use or discard previously developed code arose through contract negotiations" and is therefore "not subject to the ex parte rules."

The facts that have recently come to light raise troubling questions regarding Ericsson's representations to the Commission. In September 2014, in an effort to rebut concerns that Neustar had raised about the national security implications of allowing Ericsson to serve as the LNPA, Ericsson stated that "the 'U.S. NPAC will be built in America from the ground up,'" and that "it 'will not use foreign code in the U.S. NPAC nor will it use U.S.[-developed] code elsewhere in the world.’”² It further represented that “Telcordia employees working on NPAC/SMS systems will be U.S. citizens who will be closely screened, vetted, trained, and supervised.”³ Ericsson now admits that – even before the March 2015 Selection Order was issued – it was knowingly employing non-U.S. citizens to work on the NPAC/SMS system. It is also now evident that Ericsson concealed this fact before the Selection Order issued and for months afterwards.

¹ Order, Telcordia Technologies, Inc. Petition To Reform Amendment 57 and To Order a Competitive Bidding Process for Number Portability Administration, et al., 30 FCC Rcd 3082 (2015) ("Selection Order").

These facts raise substantial questions about Ericsson’s candor. Although it was using non-U.S. citizens to develop NPAC/SMS code before the Selection Order,⁴ Ericsson does not explain why it was not until 6 months after the Selection Order – fall 2015 – that the Commission became aware “that national security may have been jeopardized,” nor does it explain how this came to light.⁵ Nor does Ericsson explain why it waited until a year after the Selection Order – March 2016 – to begin what it claims is a project to have U.S. citizens rewrite the code.⁶ These facts raise concerns that Ericsson apparently put national security at risk by using foreign coders to save costs on the contract – and hoped to get away with it.⁷

Ericsson has been less than forthcoming in its recent communications to the Commission about this very issue. In its April 25, 2016 ex parte letter, Ericsson informed the Commission that “the individuals hired during the time in question met all applicable obligations.”⁸ That statement could be accurate only as it relates to “the time in question” in the Stern complaint: August–October 2015.⁹ Ericsson conveniently omitted reference to its hiring of non-U.S. citizens sometime before the March 2015 Selection Order. Ericsson apparently hoped that the Commission would hurry up and approve its contract with the NAPM while at the same time trying to conceal the facts regarding its non-compliance from public scrutiny.

² Selection Order ¶ 125 (quoting Supplemental Ex Parte Response of Telcordia Techs., Inc. D/B/A iconectiv to Neustar, Inc. Supplemental Reply at 5, 13 (filed Sept. 23, 2014)).

³ Id.

⁴ Letter at 1.

⁵ Ellen Nakashima, Security of Critical Phone Database Called into Question, Wash. Post (Apr. 28, 2016), available at <http://wpo.st/HuvY1>.

⁶ See id.

⁷ See Compl. ¶¶ 30-41, Stern v. Telcordia Techs./DBA iconectiv, (N.J. Super. Ct. Mar. 28, 2016).

⁸ Letter from John T. Nakahata, Counsel for Telcordia Techs., Inc. to Marlene H. Dortch, Sec’y, FCC, CC Docket No. 95-116, WC Docket Nos. 07-149, 09-109 (Apr. 25, 2016).

⁹ See Compl. ¶¶ 28-30, Stern v. Telcordia Techs./DBA iconectiv.

Ms. Dortch
May 9, 2016
Page 3

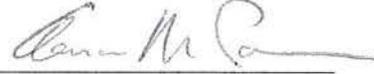

Communications regarding this issue implicate much more than the negotiation of the terms of the MSA. They implicate the accuracy of the representations that Ericsson made to the Commission. They also implicate Ericsson's compliance with the conditions that the Selection Order imposed independent of the terms of the MSA. Ericsson's failure to comply with its obligations under the Selection Order and its lack of candor are thus highly relevant to the remainder of this proceeding.

Communications regarding this issue are not exempt from the Commission's ex parte rules. Just because Ericsson's lack of compliance with the Selection Order "arose through contract negotiations" does not exempt these communications from the ex parte rules because compliance with a legal duty is outside the scope of any contract. Put simply, compliance with the Selection Order is not part of the give and take of contract negotiation. The legal duty exists whether or not it is incorporated in the MSA. More fundamentally, industry participants and members of the public have a right to know the circumstances around Ericsson's apparent violations and the basis for determining that it could nevertheless be permitted to serve as LNPA.

Pursuant to Section 1.1206 of the Commission's rules, 47 C.F.R. § 1.1206, a copy of this letter is being filed via ECFS. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Respectfully submitted,

Thomas J. Navin
WILEY REIN LLP
1776 K Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20006
(202) 719-7000
tnavin@wileyrein.com

Aaron M. Panner
KELLOGG, HUBER, HANSEN, TODD,
EVANS & FIGEL, P.L.L.C.
1615 M Street, N.W., Suite 400
Washington, D.C. 20036
(202) 326-7900
apanner@khhte.com

Counsel for Neustar, Inc.

cc: Diane Cornell
Rebekah Goodheart
Travis Litman
Nicholas Degani
Amy Bender
Matt DelNero
Kris Monteith
Ann Stevens

Ms. Dortch
May 9, 2016
Page 4

Marilyn Jones
Sanford Williams
Jonathan Sallet
Michele Ellison
Rear Admiral (ret.) David Simpson
Debra Jordan
Brendan V. Sullivan, Jr., Williams & Connolly