Please do not make any changes to the current allocation of frequencies. There needs to be specific portions of the bands for specific uses, in order to keep order and to avoid conflicts with separate modes. Also, for those who have a preference for a particular mode, an "open band plan" would make it more difficult to congregate with like-minded operators.

In addition, due to mixed mode operation, there will be conflicts, and additional interference. CW operations, while effective at low power, and not heard by SSB operators, would be subject to inadvertent interference, making potential emergency communication impossible.
