The marketplace for video content is booming and incredibly competitive, offering a diverse array of video streaming services, cloud-based video on demand, and apps providing news, cinema and programming. This market is quickly innovating beyond the traditional set-top box to new applications and devices with more diversity than ever. Past government attempts to control set-top boxes have been a complete failure. Yet another failed attempt at heavy-handed government regulation will only hinder innovation and benefit companies with political sway rather than companies that provide what Americans want. We don't need the FCC to repair something what isn't broken -- I urge you to reject the proposed rule.
