The marketplace for video content is booming and incredibly competitive, offering a wide array of video streaming services, cloud-based video on demand, and apps providing news, cinema and programming. This market is swiftly innovating beyond the traditional set-top box to new applications and devices with more choices than ever.

Past Commission attempts to control set-top boxes have been a complete failure. Yet another failed attempt at one-size-fits-all government regulation will only put the brakes on innovation and benefit companies with political power rather than companies that provide what Americans want. We don't need the government to repair something that isn't broken -- I urge you to reject the proposed rule.
