The market for video content is thriving and incredibly competitive, offering a diverse array of video streaming services, cloud-based video on demand, and apps providing news, cinema and programming. This market is swiftly innovating beyond the traditional set-top box to new applications and devices with more diversity than ever. Past Commission attempts to control set-top boxes have been a complete failure. Yet another failed attempt at one-size-fits-all government regulation will only stifle innovation and benefit companies with political influence rather than companies that provide what viewers want. We don't need the federal government to attempt to fix what isn't broken -- I urge you to reject the proposed rule.
