The marketplace for video content is booming and highly competitive, offering a diverse array of video streaming services, cloud-based video on demand, and apps providing news, movies and programming. This market is swiftly innovating beyond the traditional set-top box to new applications and devices with more options than ever.

Past FCC attempts to control set-top boxes have been a complete failure. Yet another failed attempt at one-size-fits-all government regulation will only stifle innovation and benefit companies with political influence rather than companies that provide what viewers want. We don't need the government to repair something what isn't broken -- I urge you to reject the proposed rule.
