I think this silly proposal has no merit at all. This is submitted by a small man that has no love for Morse Code. What he does love is bragging about his college degrees. Look up his call on qrz.com and he will list his wall paper accomplishments. I never seen any amateur radio operator do that. I could write a book about why I think RM-11769 is stupid. Suffice to say it would cause bedlam with cw operators on the ham bands. We do not need this. It seems that SSB operators always want more and more spectrum. Over the last few years they have gained plenty of spectrum at the expense of cw operators. I therefore want the FCC to totally trash this son of a bitches proposal.
