There is nothing that annoys me more than the unsolicited phone calls we receive constantly from sleeze bags trying to lower my interest rate, help with my college loans, some non-English speaker claiming he is calling from Windows, notification that my several warranties are about to expire, etc. I really believe I should be protected from this constant harassment and that my government should protect me rather than giving free rein to the jerks I have no interest in talking with. By the way, your "do not call list" doesn't work and is a waste of time.
