Re: Notice of Ex Parte Communication: Terrestrial Use of the 2473-2495 MHz Band for Low-Power Mobile Broadband Networks, IB Docket No. 13-213; Amendments to Rules for the Ancillary Terrestrial Component of Mobile Satellite Service Systems, RM-11685

Dear Ms. Dortch:

On June 1, 2016, I spoke by telephone with Daudeline Meme, Legal Advisor to Commissioner Clyburn, regarding Globalstar's proposed Terrestrial Low Power Service (TLPS) that would occupy Wi-Fi Channel 14. I observed that if the Commission were to allow Globalstar to test deployment of a proprietary Wi-Fi-type service in unlicensed 2.4 GHz spectrum on a preferential basis, then such a trial should both protect and advance options for future use of Wi-Fi Channel 14 by the general public. Should the Globalstar TLPS proposal move forward despite the many concerns that have been raised, then the Commission should expressly commit to initiating a future proceeding to open Channel 14 for public use if TLPS use is shown to be viable in practice. Furthermore, to ensure that TLPS deployment does not make achieving beneficial public use of Channel 14 more difficult, Globalstar should be required (a) to publish all protocol(s) its Network Operating System (NOS) uses to authorize spectrum used by TLPS devices in Channel 14 and (b) to demonstrate that the NOS is capable of exchanging with non-TLPS devices all information needed for spectrum use in Channel 14 without reliance on non-public protocols or standards.

Pursuant to the Commission's rules, this notice is being filed in the above-referenced dockets for inclusion in the public record. Please contact me should you have any questions.
