

60002091299.txt

It is absolutely critical that sufficient bandwidth be set aside and protected for the sole use of government entities operating as public safety, meteorological, and oceanographic data providers. Any potential impediments to providing uninterrupted communications for real-time data collection, data dissemination, forecasting, or the protection of life and property is unacceptable. Furthermore, additional bandwidth should be reserved and set aside for the future needs of these government agencies.