I have received very few dunning calls in my life, but hate robocalls so much that I feel the need to comment. robocalls are SO annoying that one usually just hangs up. So allowing unlimited calls won't help collections, just annoy anyone who gets them. They should ONLY be allowed to those who hold debt, not any friends or family. I don't doubt that debt collection is a difficult business, but that doesn't mean people should be harassed. Most people try to pay their bills and those who don't won't be shamed by robocalls anyway.
