We have a Constitution to follow, that is for those that are not crooked, and corrupt. We have a right to freedom of speech, and our privacy. It looks to me like you should want to leave a mark that cannot be erased for good, for life, liberty, justice. You should want to stand for that which is in the Constitution, however that would be too much like right. Especially if you have wicked, evil, or underhanded motives such as the current administration hell bent on destroying the country and everything good in it.
