

Comments on the proposed changes to the amateur radio rules:

I support the proposed changes.

My personal opinion on the morse code question would be to retain a minimum requirement of at least 5 wpm. If it were left to me I would set two levels, a low speed of 5 wpm, as we have now, and a high speed requirement of something in the range of 10-13 wpm.

I believe this arrangement or a similar one, is used by several other countries.

On a different but related note:

I would also like to see the FCC address neighborhood association covenants and their impact on amateur radio. Especially antenna restrictions. I believe current rulings apply only to city and county ordinances.

Thanks,

Kevin
