

Exchanging "ease of law enforcement" for everyman's civil rights has never been an acceptable tradeoff. While I'm sure the FBI is "well intentioned" in demanding that cell phones be trackable, this is another fine example of trampling of everyone's civil rights in the name of Justice.

I am completely unwilling to yield up ANY of my civil rights(including privacy) to make it easier for law enforcement officials to track "criminals". If any arm of the government tramples the rights of one honest citizen in an effort to catch a criminal, you have committed a worse crime in so doing than letting the criminal go. Do this to all the citizens, en mass, and you have committed a crime against the country and our founding principals.

I urge you to HALT all such attempts to use cell phone location equipment, internet email/packet traffic monitoring, restricted access to cryptography, etc. to infringe on the privacy and civil rights of all Americans. Your primary duty is to protect the citizens of the state, NOT accomodate law enforcement agencies.
