

I find the idea of records being kept of my location when using my cellular telephone objectionable. With the current surge in information technology, our privacy is being compromised more and more. This is an intrusion that is completely unwarranted, and should not be allowed. Information gathering on citizens who are not suspected of criminal activity "just in case" it may be useful to law enforcement in the future runs contrary to the intent of our existing laws. Should you chose to allow this to take place, I may reconsider my ownership of such a device. Thank you.