

Dear Sirs,

I thought the auctioning of the public airwaves to the cell companies was the gravest of insults not to mention a constitutional abridgement. Now you have bested yourselves by proposing to further steal from us and abridge more constitutional protections from us by turning the cellular network into a tracking system.

I suggest that you just dispense with the legal technicalities, since you are an unelected dictatorship that can basically do anything you wish , constitutional or not. I suggest you get to where you are heading and just require a homing and listening device implanted under the skin of all citizens at birth.

Sincerely,
Joseph F. Tittiger
