

FCC Proceeding 97-213, enabling law enforcement to determine the location of individuals using cellular telephones and to monitor Internet communications, is an egregious violation of the rights to privacy and to the presumption of innocence of American citizens -- taxpaying citizens who pay for both the FCC and the FBI.

As Justice Brandeis wrote, "As a means of espionage, writs of assistance and general warrants are but puny instruments of tyranny and oppression when compared with wire tapping."

Stop this assault on the rights of Americans!
