

I am concerned about losing access to television networks via my east and westcoast feeds. I would like to voice my opinion and say that allowing me to watch a east coast or west coast networks allows me the freedom to watch programming/news from other areas on my time schedule. Since Lisle, IL is only 30 miles from Chicago, under what I have read, I would loose my right to continue to do this. I then would have to put up a rooftop antenna to get a decent picture, or pay additional to get cable. I feel the C-band satellite system offers more choices, and allowing me to make it a complete package. I have been subscribing to prime time east / and west for several years and don't see how it causes problems.

Thanks for your time
