

Dear FCC: Picture and sound quality can be measured objectively, but what constitutes "good" or "acceptable" is still subjective in practice. Consumers should be able to choose to watch satellite programming of networks if they wish (especially when they are willing to pay for it).