

Even though I can receive no TV stations using an antenna (no matter how large, or where I place it), these same "local" network stations are able to use the current regulations to deny me the waiver I need to be able to buy network programming over my satellite dish. I CAN'T watch their stations because the mountains block the reception. But they still use the regulatory maps of your agency to sanction their refusal to give me a waiver. Something is very wrong here, and you need to do more to protect the citizens' rights from these "dog-in-the-manger" TV stations. CBS in spartenburg, SC; Fox and NBC in Greeneville, SC. Thank you for your help.
