Capability to All Americans in a Reasonable and Timely Fashion, and Possible
Steps to Accelerate Such Deployment Pursuant to Section 706 of the Telecommunications Act of 1996

CC: Docket 98-146

Dear Ms. Salas:

On January 15, 1999, Jan Peters, President and CEO of MediaOne and I spoke with Commissioner Susan Ness, Anita Wallgren and Linda Kinney regarding the above-referenced docket. We discussed MediaOne's Broadband investment and the chilling effect common carrier-like regulation would have on our business. The major points discussed during the meeting are included in the enclosed presentation.

Enclosed are two copies of this letter and the presentation referenced above.

Very truly yours,

Susan M. Eid

MediaOne's Investment In Broadband Is The Direct Result Of A Stable And Predictable Regulatory Environment

Total domestic broadband investment over 6 years: $7.2 billion.

Investment Community Has Gone On Record In Opposition To Forcing Cable Companies To Unbundle Their Networks

“ We believe adoption of these proposals would significantly slow down the deployment of advanced telecommunications services and would retard the substantial progress the Commission has made toward the deregulatory, competitive telecommunications market envisioned by the 1996 Telecommunications Reform Act. ”

“It cannot be stated strongly enough that even a hint of regulating the cable network as a common carrier would severely diminish the willingness of investors to finance system upgrades and new facilities. ”

Letter from Credit Suisse First Boston Corporation, Donaldson, Lufkin, & Jenrette Securities, Merrill Lynch Incorporated, and Paine Webber Incorporated to Chairman Kennard dated December 18, 1998.

Silicon Valley Companies Reflect Similar Concerns To Those Of Financial Community

“Investments in [new Broadband facilities] are very risky and lack any guaranteed return. Government regulation would actually limit the return on investment, and cause investors to be less willing to risk the billions of dollars necessary to build out the networks. Government intervention is particularly misplaced in the case of new broadband networks deployed by entities that lack the market position of traditional telephone companies.”

Letter from Intel, Compaq Computer, Cisco Systems, IBM, Novell and other Silicon Valley executives to Chairman Kennard dated December 19, 1998.

The Market For Internet And Wireless Data Transmission Services Is Competitive

- Telephone Companies are aggressively deploying ADSL technology.
 - Prudential projects the RBOCs and GTE to have 94 million ADSL-Qualified Lines by 2002 with 8.7 million residential subscribers.
 - Allied Business Intelligence predicts that by 2004 ADSL will have a greater market share than cable modems (37% v. 26%).
- The Wireless Industry will potentially reach 39.6 million homes with Internet access by 2001.
- The Satellite Industry is already delivering 400 kpbs satellite-delivered Internet service nationwide.
 - Pioneer Consulting suggests that the Satellite Industry will have the dominant share of high-speed access revenues by 2007.

Broadband Deployment by Industries

(Homes Passed in Millions)

Source: Various Press Releases.

There are -- and will be -- numerous alternatives for the foreseeable future.

- By 2002, 45.5 million households will still access the Internet through traditional dial-up.
- 11.2 million subscribers will access the Internet through Broadband connections.

Source: Jupiter Communications, Strategic Planning Services, "Last Mile Strategies," August 1998, pp. 3, 10.

Broadband Will Simply Be An Alternative Connection To On-Line Services.

- Even AOL has acknowledged that narrowband will be the preferred choice of consumers for the foreseeable future.

“We do believe ... five years from now probably 75% of the market will be narrowband, because people want it to be as easy and inexpensive as possible.”

Steve Case, AOL (CNBC- 9/28/98).

“The mass market will continue to adopt the narrowband service as the entry point because it will be easier to install and less expensive to use. Some of these customers, maybe 25 percent, will pay extra for faster service. Broadband will be like first class is to the airlines.”

Steve Case, AOL (cited in Electronic Media, 11/9/98).

There Is No Need For Additional Government Intervention In This Emerging Marketplace

- MediaOne is a “new entrant” to the market place, providing competition to the incumbent local exchange carriers.
 - MediaOne is not the dominant provider of advanced Broadband services.
 - MediaOne’s Broadband plant is not an essential facility.

Summary

- The Commission should report to Congress that there is reasonable and timely Broadband deployment.
 - Given the record in this Inquiry, it would be premature for the Commission to initiate further proceedings.
 - Further FCC proceedings suggesting new regulations on cable's Broadband plant will chill investment and discourage rapid Broadband deployment, contrary to the goals of Section 706.
 - The Commission should continue to monitor the status of Broadband deployment (e.g. through periodic reports).

The MediaOne COOL Bus

What is the COOL Bus?

The COOL Bus is MediaOne's way of taking our hands-on Internet training on the road. As part of our Community Outreach and Online Learning (COOL) program, this mobile, interactive computer-training lab gives teachers, students and parents a chance to explore the Internet in a lively, educational environment.

Who are the instructors?

The COOL Bus program is a partnership between MediaOne and specially trained interns from local universities. The interns work with our local MediaOne offices throughout the country to schedule training sessions at schools and public libraries in the communities we serve. The interns typically conduct at least 90 hours of Internet training in a given community each month.

What would I learn?

The instructors introduce "students" to the Internet and teach them how to access online information services and send and receive electronic mail. The interns also will provide a guided tour of the Internet and explain the tools used to navigate the World Wide Web. The tour includes "hot links" to several Web sites that are appropriate for young Internet "surfers." After their guided tour, students are given a chance to explore the World Wide Web on their own.

What's the COOL Bus Itinerary?

In 1998 in Atlanta, MediaOne interns trained 1,800 teachers, students and parents in 28 communities. Now MediaOne has COOL Buses in Los Angeles and Florida. As part of our partnership with Cable in the Classroom, we'll also have a COOL Bus in Minnesota this year.

Who would benefit from Internet training?

Anyone and everyone! Our trainers find that senior citizens are as adept at surfing the 'net as kids. In Atlanta, our trainers reported that many training sessions involved parents and their children – and that the COOL Bus visited a wide variety of organizations, including inner-city schools and youth centers, scout troops, and churches.

MediaOneSM

Get involved with COOL—and head back to school!

Toolkit

Outreach

COOL stands for Community Outreach & Online Learning.

The COOL program encourages employees to "adopt" a classroom and volunteer in schools throughout MediaOne's regions and headquarters city. Volunteers will bring a COOL kit to the classroom and work with the teacher to introduce technology-related materials to the students.

The toolkit contains:

Internet training manuals, a video on the role TV plays in our lives, a Cable in the Classroom programming guide, blank videos for taping educational programs, a COOL mousepad, and other valuable classroom tools. Additional tools will be provided periodically.

Grants

COOL Grants: MediaOne employees can earn up to $600 annually by volunteering in a classroom. The class can use the grant to purchase software, hardware or other items that will further the use of technology in the classroom. Employees can earn their class a $250 grant for the classroom after volunteering only four hours in the class. An additional $350 grant can be earned when the employee completes another 26 hours of volunteering in the classroom.

If you are a MediaOne employee,
please call 1 800 726 9556 for more information or to register for the COOL program.

If you are a teacher or administrator,

MediaOne® To Reward Educators for Developing Classroom Applications for Video and Internet Technologies

ANNOUNCES "COOL" AWARD PROGRAM FOR OUTSTANDING EDUCATORS

Englewood, Colo., January 6, 1999 - Educators who develop new ways to use technology in the classroom can win cash grants and computers from MediaOne®, the Broadband services arm of MediaOne® Group, the company said today.

In announcing the COOL Awards for Outstanding Educators, MediaOne invited teachers – from kindergarten through the 12th grade – and school administrators in MediaOne service areas to apply for the grants. MediaOne serves five million customers in California, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Hampshire, New York, Ohio, Rhode Island, and Virginia.

The competition, part of MediaOne's Community Outreach and Online Learning (COOL) program, is designed to encourage educators to work as teams to develop innovative classroom applications for video and Internet technologies.

To be eligible for a MediaOne COOL Award, educators must be active as classroom teachers, and school administrators must be personally involved in developing and implementing the project. Fourteen teams will win cash grants of $8,000, plus computers, in-class training and an all-expense-paid trip to Washington, D.C.

"At MediaOne, we believe teachers need the latest communication tools to help students make the most of their future," said Blair Johnson, director of MediaOne Community Outreach. "Our COOL Awards for Outstanding Educators recognize that need."

MediaOne Rewards Educators in COOL Program, page 2

In each of its major service areas, MediaOne will form a committee of educators, business leaders, and community representatives to evaluate the local COOL Awards applications based on the following criteria:

- Creativity - How innovative the project is, and how effectively it incorporates media resources and technology, such as Cable in the Classroom programming, video production, distance learning and high-speed Internet access;
- Leadership - How likely the project is to be successfully applied in the school, and whether it can be replicated in other schools in that district;
- Participation - Whether the team's composition reflects the diversity of the community, and whether the team's project gives community members a chance to learn how to use technology.
- Outcomes - What effect the project will have on technology-based learning in the school or school district.

The deadline for returning COOL Award applications to MediaOne is March 20, 1999. Award recipients will be notified by April 30, 1999. For more information on how to apply for a MediaOne COOL Award, or to obtain an application, please call 1-800-871-6852.
