

Dear FCC,

Please don't allow the telecommunication industry's anti-slamming proposal to replace your rules which put power in the hands of consumers instead of the industry. The telecommunication industry's proposal does not want refunds of illegal switching of long distance carriers to go to consumers. Instead, they want refunds to go to the original carrier which would give their customers long distance "free calling time" that amounts to the refund. I believe that customers would prefer the refunds to go directly to us. Hence, we can decide how to spend the refund. We, as customers, don't need long distance carriers to decide how to spend our refunds.

In closing, please allow the FCC rules to remain in it's current form. Customers have the right to decide how to spend their own money that was obtained illegally by long distance "slammers".

Thank you,

Pastor Travis Lee Thompson
