

Not requiring AT&T and the Cable Industry to provide open access to broadband over coax to the home is ridiculous. Clearly the pattern needs to be set for competition irrespective of medium, twisted pair/DSL, cable modem, or satellite. That is what will drive down prices and increase the diversity of content available.