

Dear FCC,

I strongly disagree with the decision to reduce code and written test requirements for the amateur radio test. I have not seen a good reason for doing so and the general ham population agrees that it was an act by our public officials to generate money for companies manufacturing radio equipment. This action by the FCC will not go by without further investigation.

Ron Hooper