

Concerning the repeal of the 155 mile limit on CB communications. This is a silly rule. If long distance communications were not to happen, why did the CB band wind up on 11 meters? "DX" happens! It is a law of physics!! Power limits on CB stations I can understand, but when the band opens up communications are possible coast to coast on 4 watts (or so I've heard). I don't see how this is interfering with anybody. Let them talk.