

I am writing to protest the proposed auction of frequency bands currently used by the hearing impaired for personal FM systems. My 3-year-old daughter uses such a system, which enables her to participate fully in her mainstreamed preschool classroom. We expect that this technology will continue to be vital throughout her education as well as in many social settings where it will be beneficial to her to receive amplification of a speaker. We implore the FCC to reconsider its plans to make the frequency bands currently reserved for this use available commercially. Thank you.
