Moapa

Moapa is located in the northwest section of Northeast Clark County, along State Highway 168 and north of the Moapa Indian Reservation. A primary feature of this location is the Warm Springs area. Warm Springs contains the headwaters of the Muddy River, which flows through Moapa and Moapa Valley on its way to Lake Mead. Development in Moapa is rural residential. Irrigation water is available along the river and some agricultural uses are established. Lots are almost exclusively 2 acres or larger, although several acre developments are in various planning stages. Abundant water from the Muddy River is used at Nevada Power Company's huge steam-generated Reid Gardner Power Plant. Employers in the area include the Hidden Valley Dairy and Lasco Bathware. Public services include an elementary school, a library, sheriff's substation, a volunteer fire department and volunteer ambulance service. A new recreation facility, funded through the town's self-imposed tax, is currently under construction. Moapa's population is approximately 500.
