

I would like to offer my displeasure with your initiative to lift the cross-ownership ban which will allow further media consolidation.

Such an action will not only narrow the potential to find alternative opinions on current issues, such an action will also open up companies with excessive holdings to potential anti-trust lawsuits.

You should re-think your strategy, not only for the concern of the public and the interests of journalism, but also for individual company's livelihoods.