

I want the government to force wireless telephone companies to allow phone number portability. I have that option with my land line and the wireless companies should give their customers that same right. I understand that Verizon Wireless has requested that the government drop the mandate altogether. That is a slap in the face to hard working consumers and taxpayers like myself and the government should make sure wireless companies allow us the same convenience afforded us by land line companies. I also understand that Leap Wireless does allow their customers portability so I see no reason why the other companies cannot do the same. Thank you.
