

No where in the Constitution does it give a citizen the right to broadband access. In these rural areas, the central office is many miles away and DSL will not be available anyway. The Justice Department is now in a monopoly action against Microsoft, this action would only allow more of the same actions against the telco's in the future. Why was ATT broken up in the first place? To eliminate the very kind of actions that will result from this action.