

The Honorable Michael K. Powell
Chairman
Federal Communications Commission
445 12th Street, S.W.
Washington, D.C. 20554

Dear Chairman Powell:

We have enjoyed having a high-speed and trouble-free internet connection, which is provided by an independent ISP (Iglou), for over a year. We chose Iglou because they were willing to work with us as a small business like we were just an active internet home user. This was unlike the much larger ISPs, which treated all businesses like big businesses, meaning that high-speed internet access was way out of our league. This means that we are able to participate equally with large businesses, and for a small business (husband and wife only), this is extremely important and valuable.

If the FCC shuts out the small providers, then the FCC will be guilty of the same thing Microsoft was accused of - providing for a monopoly. The internet business environment is NO different from the non-internet business environment, and it's about time that the government treats them the same.

Sincerely,

Clark and Carol McCaslin
