

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. My family received calls on a daily basis (many times during our evening meal) that continually disrupted our lives. My wife has been much happier since the Indiana law was instituted.

I also believe that unsolicited e-mails should be curtailed. This is another nuisance that must be dealt with and is costing businesses valuable time and resources.