

Keep the Internet as open and unregulated as possible.
No tax should be applied to the Internet.
Always maximize freedom and ease of transmission of information.
No attempt should be made to monopolize or limit access.
Free speech is especially important.
No public or private entity should control the Internet.
There is safety in numbers and open competition.
No entity should be given any advantage over another.