

I oppose loosening the rules designed to promote and protect diversity of media ownership. These rules were adopted to ensure that the public would receive a diverse range of viewpoints from the media, and not simply the opinions of a handful of media conglomerates.

It is the individual observer, photographer, reporter who has (since colonial days, and the pamphlet "Common Sense"), witnessed, documented and articulated issues of concern to a nation committed to preserving a democratic society. This works...why change it? There are many other areas in need of federal intervention, for example, the health care system that doesn't work...how about changing that instead?
