

The phone and cable companies are monopolies. You can not reasonably expect a complete view of the news, our way of being Jefferson's enlightened populace, with no competition. We can not then have only one source of news, or one means of access. Competition, or regulation, or both, but not neither. Both cable and telephone equipment owners must then be required to provide or enable more than one means of access, not only their own.