

I agree with Mr. Farrar, KZ5HAM. I have been interested in obtaining a Vanity Call Sign, but have not at the present time because I can not justify the cost when I can renew my present call sign at no expense.

The FCC is a government body, paid for through the taxes that I and most other American's pay. For me to pay additional monies for them to do their job seems ludicrous. If they believe that they need additional monies to process and renew Vanity Callsigns, then maybe it is time for another organization to issue and renew amateur licenses, such as the ARRL.