

Is this where we're headed as a nation? Is it not obvious that what little freedom of the press that we have left is in serious jeopardy? What is more important, an almost 300-year-old constitution or corporations being allowed to fortify their already-present dominance of the media? What good is it going to bring to the average American? None at all. So go ahead, FCC, and lie down on your back while the corporate interests file in at the ready.
